S. T. KEELER, No. 13 East Main Street.

It is not true that the great victories of life are to the sharp and immoral man, as a rule. Here and there, by sharpness and cunning men rise into wealth, but that wealth is not of a kind to remain. It takes a certain amount of virtue, of self-denial, of morality, to lay up and to keep money. In the lives of nearly all rich men there have been periods of heroic self-denial, of patient industry, of christian prudence. Circumstance did not make those men rich. The highest moral prudence made them While their companions were dancing away their youth or drinking away their middle age, these men were devoted to small economies—putting self-indulgence entirely aside. If our correspondent or our readers will recall their companions, we think the first act they will be impressed with is the measure of equality with which they started in the race for competence or wealth. The next fact they will be impressed with is the irregularity of the end.— Then, if they make an inquisition into the causes of the widely varying results, they will be profoundly impressed with the insignificant part " circumstances ' have played in those results. Circumstances? Why, the rich man's son, who had all the "circumstances" of the town, has become a beggar. The poor, quiet lad, the only son of his mother, and she a widow, who could only earn money enough to procure for her boy the commonest education, is a man of wealth, and has become a patron of his native village. The man who professes and practices virtue makes his own circumstances. The self-denying, prudent man creates around himself an atmosphere of safety where wealth naturally takes refuge-provided, of course, that the man has the power to carn it, either in production or exchange, or any kind Cor. THE DEAD PRINCESS.

The Queen's first-born was the Princess Victoria, the wife of the Crown Prince, and the future Empress of Germany; the Prince of Wales was the second, and the Princess Alice was the third. The latter was born on the 25th of April, 1843, and on the 1st of July, 1862, was married to Prince Ludwig of Hesse, a man rather more than five years her senior, and with whom her union has always been happy. She was the mother of seven children-five daughters and two sons. One of the last, when but little more than a baby, fell from a window and was killed, and it is only a few days ago that the youngest girl, Marie, a child of 12 years old, sickened with the diphtheria and died. It was while nursing her that the Princess caught the malady of which she herself is now a victim. The children who survive her are the Princesses Victoria, Elizabeth, Irene and Alice, and the Prince Ludwig.

CLAT'S REPLY TO CALHOUN.

A Great Scene in the Senate. From Matthews' Orators and Oratory.

Proceeding to the Senate, my attention was at once arrested by a voice that seemed like the music of the spheres. It came from the lipe of a tall, wellformed man with a wide mouth, a flashing eye, and a countenance that revealed every thought within. His voice was rant, not one tone of vociferation in the very climax of his passion. He spoke deliberately, and his outpouring of denunciation was as slow and steady as the trend of Nemesia. He gesticulated all over. As he spoke he stepped backward and forward with effect; and the nodding of his head, hung on a long nock-his arms, hands, fingers, feet, and even his spectacles and blue handkerchief aided him in the debate It was Henry Clay, engaged in a hand-to-hand struggle with another giant of the Sonate, John C. Calhoun.

Clay had just taunted him with a rumor that he had left the opposition ranks, and struck hands with the Administration. He (Mr. Clay) "would tor from South Carolina and the Kindehtook fox" (meaning President Van

As the disease is known to be contaglous, the first rule to observe is: 1. Every person known to be sick with this disease should be promptly and effectually isolated from the public; one or two persons only should take the entire charge of the patient, and they hould be restricted in their intercourse

2. The room into which one sick with diphtheria is placed should proviously be cleared of all needless cluthing, ear-pets, drapery and other materials likely to harhor the poison of the disease.— This room should constantly receive a liberal supply of fresh air, without our rent or drafts directly upon the patient. It will be well also to have the sun shine directly into the room.

5. The discharges from the throat, pose and month are extremely liable to communicate the disease, and should be passed on old slothes and burned, or into vessels kept thoroughly disinfected by nitrate of lead, chloride of zinc. or sulphate of iron (copperss), and then be buried at least one hundred feet from any well.

tion was at once arrested by a voice that seemed like the music of the spheres. It came from the lips of a tall, wellformed man with a wide mouth, a flashing eye, and a countenance that reveal ed every thought within. His voice was rant, not one tone of vociferation in the very climax of his passion. He spoke deliberately, and his outpouring of de nunciation was as slow and steady as the tread of Nemesis. He gesticulated all over. As he spoke he stepped backward and forward with effect; and the nodding of his head, hung on a long nock-his arms, hands, fingers, feet, and even his spectacles and blue handkerchief aided him in the debate. It was Henry Clay, engaged in a hand-to-hand struggle with another giant of the Sonate, John C. Calhoun.

Clay had just taunted him with a rumor that he had left the opposition ranks, and struck hands with the Administration. He (Mr. Clay) "would like to know what compromises had trian tour in Europe, publishing in 1846 been made between the honorable Sentor from South Carolina and the Kindehtook fox" (meaning President Van

As he said this the speaker advanced down the sisle, directly in front of Calhoun, and pointing to him with his quivering fingers, said, in tones in which were concentrated the utmost scorn and defiance, "He my master! SKETCH OF HIS LIFE.

Square, Chester county, Pa., January 11, 1825. In 1842 he became an apprentice in a printing office in West Chester, and in 1844-5 made a pedesafter his return home, his first book of travels, entitled "Views Afgot, or Europe" Seen with Knapsack and Staff." After editing for a year a newspaper in Phonizville, Pa., he went to New York and wrote for the Literary World, soon after becoming a member of the Tribune editorial staff. In 1849 he went to California and Mexico, and in 1851 made a protracted visit to the Old World, visiting Egypt, Syria, portions of Asia Minor and Europe. Leaving England in 1852, he crossed Asia to Calcutta, thence to China, joining Commodore Perry's expedition to Japan. He was Secretary of Legation at St. Petersburg in 1862-3, part of the time being him translated in Icelandic, was read. He had always been a great traveler, as well as an enterprising and prolific of his works have been translated into German, French and Russian. At the Hayes Minister of the United States to

MARRIED—At the residence of the bride's parents, at 8:30 last evening, by Rev. W. H. Prestley, Mr. David A. Marrit and Miss Flora Unity. The above simple announcement will be read with much interest by our hundreds of readers, to whom the bride and groom are well and favorably known .--The company which assembled to witness the marriage of this couple included only the nearer relatives and most intimate friends of the two families, but it was a happy party, nevertheless, each one present seeming to beartily enter into the feativities of the occasion. The ceremony, as performed by Rev Mr. Prestley, was simple, but beautiful and impressive, and the responses clear and distinct. The congratulations which followed partook of he same hearty and unaffected [character. which pervaded the festivities of the evening. A splendid supper, embracing all that could please the palate, was a fitting fluxle to the ceremonial portion of the evening's joys. That it was fully enjoyed need not be asserted. The Italian Band discoursed most excellent music during the evening-playing better, even,

The bride received very many choice presents from her more immediate friends, including silverware, table linen, jewelry, and, from the bridegroom, the splendid horse "Reckless"-one of the beautiful bays driven by him. The pleasures of the evening were greatly heightened by the allability and cordulity with which the guests were received and entertained by the parents of the bride, Captain and Mrs. Wm J. Usrey, and their accomplished daughter Ella-we beg pardon, we mean Miss Usrey.

We but express the sentiment of everybody when we say, Blessings on "Doc and Flo."

SMITH-COLTRIN.

There was a very quiet and happy wedding at the residence of the bride's paronts, on North Union street, last evening at 8 o'clock. Mr. Chris. B. Smith, (son of General G. A. Smith, Internal Revenue Collector of New Mexico), and Miss Ella E. Coltrin were united in marringe in the most approved manner, by Rev. D. P. Bunn The affair had been arranged to occur on Thursday next, but as Mr. Smith had received a telegram calling him to Santa Fe, New Mexico, the wedding was set forward a week; consequently only a few near friends of the tamily were present—about 20 in all.

A splendid wedding supper was spread in the dining room, under the supervision of the bride's mother, who, assisted by her husband, the redoubtable Farmer and Professor, and daughter, Miss Ida, extended those hospitalities, which a truly lappy family can bestow.

The bride received many useful and beautiful presents, but they were not displayed.

L. Burrows, of Decatur, was in town on last Monday, transacting business for the firm of Peddecord & Burrows, of that Mrs Robert Smith, of this city, has just presented her daughter Lillie with a fine Mathushek Piano for a Christmas gift. It was bought of C. B. Prescott. "Con" Ryan is back from the Black Hills, and loomed up like a Grenadice at the tabernacle last night.

We are pleased to learn that Mr. L. L. Haworth, who has been confined to his bed with pucumonia for a week past, is convalescent, and will be around in a few days. Hev. Father Hickey, of Jacksonville, late pastor of the Catholic church in this city, was a very welcome visitor at the Tabernacle last night. All made a grand rush for him. His people here love him as a brother. THE Christmas entertainment of the Presbyterians will consist of biblical tableaux, pantomimes, and selections from the Oratorios of Eather and Daniel. The lessons of the past year will be vividly impressed by these scenes, in costumes of bible times. Over two hundred costumes have been prepared, and much time has been spent in making it a success. Ap admission fee of ten cents will be charged those outside of the Sabbath school, to assist in defraying the expense of fitting up the singe.

Russia promises to become a formidable rival of the United States in the European dil market. Oil wells near the Caspian Sea are reported to equal in their yield the greatest wells in Penasylvania. In the oil-producing region in Russia a large number of wells have been sunk, and a great many more are under way. Reports from there say that there is much excitement over the discoveries as existed in Pennsylvania when then the oil fever was at its height. The wells are drilled and pumped in the most primitive manner, and a large amount of oil wasted through the want of proper means of saving it. At present the only way of getting the oil to market is by way of the Volga and the Russian canals to St. Petersburg. If a railroad should be constructed from the Caspian to the Black ea, a distance of 400 miles, Russia, it s thought, could supply the European market at such rates as to drive out the American trade.

Whatever name or designation is given to can c of Fever and Ague, or other intermittent disease, it is alway malaria.--Eliminate that from the system, and a sure cure is the immediate result. The safest, surert, most effectual, and, at the sme time perfectly harmless preparation for producing this happy effect, is CLIEroup's Ferigreok. It represents, in their utmost purity and free from all fultating properties, the immediate principles of the East India Cinchona bark, as grown on the Neilgherry bills. It is the most powerful antidote to malaria known, and yet as harmless as water.
